

Character

Age-573

Origin-Zytreek

Name-Zeek

Ability-Overgrowth & Regeneration

Weakness-Fire, Sand biome

Appearance-Alien tree creature, looks like a tree, can change physique

Backstory

Zeek is an extraterrestrial tree creature that had an appearance that looked more like a plant than anything else, just like everyone on Zytreek. Which happened to be a paradise, with fresh air and what felt like an infinite supply of whatever you wanted, and the citizens were as kind as bumblebees. Even so, Zeek was still an outcast who was banished from his home planet for being different. This was because he could form anything with his body, even change his physique! He could create a barrier around himself which would protect him if something was hurting him. This was new to the doctors and it scared them, they didn't know what to do so they hid the baby and said that it died after birth.

Shocked but excited, they experimented on the newborn and came up with an antidote to keep these random powers at bay. Unfortunately, after many years Zeek was finally caught using his unusual powers, which then led to him being exiled, for no one knew the true potential of his powers and they were scared of it so they sent him away in a spaceship. Now in space having passed many planets, Zeek was seeking for a place to call home, a place where he felt welcome. Eventually he stumbled upon a planet named Earth. For some reason he was drawn to this mysterious planet, so without a shred of fear or doubt he steadily approached it in his spaceship. Now entering the atmosphere he was gaining more speed and he was starting to rethink his choices but it was too late he couldn't turn around, Zeek was now beginning to panic because he was terrible at landing with this much speed. Now preparing to evacuate the ship, Zeeek jumped out without hesitation and immediately generated a shield covering his body and minimising the damage of the fall.

Zeeek was surprisingly calm, even though he was now stuck on an unknown planet. He took the time to fully take in this extraordinary place that he carelessly crashed on. It was an amazing forest full of life and an endless amount of trees, just like Zytreek. Carried away with joy Zeeek forgot about the tasks at hand like finding his spaceship and started to explore this unknown land. All around him there were different creatures, things he never even dreamed of seeing. Overexcited at what he had found Zeeek explored further into this untold forest until he found something that caught his eye. It looked like some kind of area full of little wooden buildings that were overflowing with weird species that were around the same size as Zeeek but looked completely different. Instead of Zeeek's hard outer shell they had what looked like a mushy and stretchy substance covering their body and they hid most of it with unusual fabric. Confused Zeeek hesitantly went to explore this uncharted territory. After he took a few steps into this abnormal area he was startled by a loud, high pitch scream yelling "MONSTER!" Zeeek didn't understand what it meant but it scared him so he ran off into the bushes as fast as he could hoping they weren't referring to him, for the way they said it sounded terrible. Frightened by what they would do to him if he came back Zeeek decided not to enter that area and go the opposite direction.

As Zeeek was slowly walking away whilst looking at the wondrous life forms hidden in this thick jungle, he started to feel like something was staring at him almost following him. Zeeek also heard rattling in the bushes and it freaked him out so he started running away. After a while Zeeek stopped running and sat down. He came to realise there was probably nothing there, and it was just the wind that made the noise in the bushes. Zeeek regained his breath and started getting up but then a massive earthquake followed by blinding lights and high frequency noises knocked him over again. Now frozen from shock, Zeeek slowly looked down at his body and saw it all glitchy and disoriented, he then started feeling dizzy and passed out. When he woke up there was a loud ringing in his head and he was back to normal, well almost. There was a blue crystal implanted in his arm but it didn't bother him for he couldn't tell it was there unless he looked at it, so he just ignored it. Zeek wasn't on the world he crashed on, instead he was in an empty, colourless void with nothing but himself. Afraid, tears streamed down Zeek's face and this was something that he had never experienced. The ringing in his head gradually went away and he started to notice that he wasn't sitting on anything but it didn't feel like he was falling either. He tried putting his hands where he was sitting but there was nothing stopping him from going further downwards. Zeek tried using his powers but nothing happened, he tried running forwards until he hit something but he never felt or hit anything, nor did he run out of energy. Now in a sitting down motion once again Zeek started hearing a faint voice, it was like something was calling him. He started to breathe as quietly as possible so he could hear this mysterious voice clearer, now concentrating Zeek could make out what the voice was saying. The voice was whispering "time has stopped, I have gathered many champions including myself to help fix this error I have made. In order to get time going again you have to get the hidden artifacts in the lost continent of Hamara or go to the planet Kelm for their supreme technology but these tasks will not be easy and you will have to make sacrifices are you prepared?" The voice stopped talking and awaited an answer. Zeek not fully understanding what the voice was talking about started to feel the anger rising in his chest, he tried attacking this odd voice but he didn't know where it was and his powers were amiss. It was useless, struggle was useless, Zeek was lost for words. Staggering on his reply Zeek gave up and gave in to whatever this abnormal voice was saying. He spoke without believing there was another option to take and proclaimed to the voice "I am prepared to help fix your mistakes in order for me to return to my timeline". There was a pause, until Zeek finally decided he was going to go to the lost continent of Hamara and find the ancient artifacts. He confidently told the voice this and once he finished talking a blue portal suddenly appeared and it was like that of a black hole but was different somehow. It was slowly pulling Zeeek towards it, but there was no resistance for Zeeek knew this was how he was being transported, still Zeeek wanted to but he didn't. Now his fingertips were touching this unnatural gateway, slowly devouring his body and Zeeek did nothing. Zeeek's body almost through, he took one last glance at the empty void and reassured himself that everything will be okay. As the air crackled with electricity, Zeeek stepped forwards into the glowing azure vortex. The layers beneath him seemed to crumble and fall away as he fell backwards, tumbling into the maelstrom.